RILLS FROM THE TOWN PUMP

BY ELVIRA SYDNOR MILLER.

Ye lovers in the public parks
Love-making must now cease.
"We'll have," the snarling gossip barks,
"A matrimonial Police."
Shall I intercept your stolen kisses, Shall I club you for the joys she misses,
There's nothing sicker than these sissies—
"Bevare."

Cupid's ray face looks like a war map of Manchuria. Some heartless wretch has risen in his wrath and holding his disjunct nose in line, has demanded public matrons for the parks and suburbs. Now if there is one thing that makes Jefferson county attractive it is the green shade spots scattered around where loving hearts can saunter at will and forget the size of her papa's boot or the infernal little brother who is always on hand at home.

I am of a sympathetic nature myself and when I chance on a loving couple with arms entwined and heads close together I pass rapidly on with averted eyes. Heaven forbid that I should cast a shadow on the rosy heaven of romance by halting and reading them a long Martin Fauguar tract on the levity of their conduct.
But there are some good people whose ideas of this sort of business are as lucid as a Sunday supplement in Chicago and from them comes the demand for public matrons of police.

There are lots of women who would take the job, grab a club and yell at the offenders before the courts, but you could not get a man to undertake it. Any girl with blue eyes, a spitcurl and a good supply of tears can bring a park policeman to taw in short order, but the police matron would not have enough of the milk of human kindness in her bosom to make an ounce of butter and at the sight of melting glances and embracing arms, the official old rubber plant would double quick to the front, hail Romeo with a tip of her hickory and shake poor daddy Juliet until her coronet curls would tumble off in the driveway.

Cruel Court of Appeals, unthinking Jefferson thereof! Little did you dream that in handing down that recent chunk of ice to our own and onliest officials you make it possible for this park matron business to get in its work. General Castellan and Col.
Louis Seelbach are down and out.
Alas, these two men would never have permitted any such officials to darken the green paradises around the country with their ominous shadows. It has been a long time, perhaps, since they dreamed love's young dream, but the memory still lingers on the horizon of their hearts like the rose and flame of the west when the sun is down.
They have heard the song that "Stolen Kisses Are The Sweetest," and applauded the chorus.

But now, alas, the lid is going to be kept on in this county, and it may be that park matrons will be appointed to sit on it in order to keep the country from bubbling up and blowing it off.

Loving couples, a word to the wise is more than a whole pamphlet to the stupid, so take heed and "gather your rose-buds while you may."

Twice a Kentucky angel
The good old saints brayed,
Who hankered in his wars
For a good old fashioned rare.
The devil had a picnic,
'Twas a job he filled to the hilt,
For the trade the good saint offered
Was just six haps for a hoos.

Well, it wasn't when Reuben came to town but some one mighty like him.
In fact the good old pastor of a little country church struck the streets here and was persuaded to attend the services at the High Church place of worship. The dear old boy was charmed; he didn't quite connect with the ceremonies, but he took emenalty, and as he called it, pleased his sense of the picturesque and beautiful and he resolved to show his small flock something just as good or prove a quitter.
He went back home the women folk to start something of the sort within a few weeks just to please the children, so he got a lot of altar boys together and drilled them: he strutted in and out, a "them and sat tall of the paternoster he got the nighties ready for the kids and finally sent to town and purchased a censer and incense. All was ready, the congregation awoke, and the procession waiting for the coming of the bell. When the fatal day came the church was thronged, there was a grand line up of women and not a few men and the good pastor's heart leaped like the roebuck.
The procession started and the altar boys singing lustily, while close behind, chanting at the top of his lungs, walked the pastor. Suddenly in the midst of his pride and satisfaction he missed the censer—alack, that was the crowning glory of the whole ceremony. He feared to halt and ask for it, he would not, could not proceed without it—he snatched his brow, suddenly an idea seized him—ah! Continuing his chanting he addressed the censer-bearer in these soulful words: "What—ah—er—ah—have you—ah—done—with that—ah—censer?"

Taking his cue from the preacher the small kid thundered back, "Too darn—ah—not—left it—ah—in—the hall!"
The old man is now conducting services in the old way, at least until he can get a chorister with asbestos-lined mitts for censer-bearer.

The City Hall heaves a sigh
As home from church he trudges,
The old man's eye is in the eye—
'Twas from the book of Judges.

It has not yet been decided whether Col. Will Hays would care to be the Colonel persists in declaring that he did. The Filson Club got up an argument about it and decided to track the author of the song to his lair, but the question had to be referred to the committee on cemeteries.
In the meanwhile Col. Hays walks away the time of waiting by making frequent trips to Orell where his cousin, Major Hays, has a houseful of pretty daughters. The Colonel is harmless as a fawn, but the women are good to him and he continues to take a kindly interest in their joys and troubles. Coming back on the cars last week the Colonel met an enthusiastic young man from Orell who proceeded to show him the picture of "the oldest girl in the world."
"She's a beauty, ain't she?" he asked as he handed out some kodak views of the lady taken with a north-east, a south-west and southern exposure.
"She is indeed," said the Colonel as he gazed over them. "Brunette ain't she? There's something dark and sparkling about her—looks kinder Spanish?"

"Well," replied the gratified lover,
"she's more like Carmen than any other woman I ever saw—I mean in looks," he added feverishly by way of protecting the lady's character, "she sings, dances, plays the guitar, rattles the air-bones, in fact she's a perfect cascade girl."

Pretty brunettes about Orell who have been knocked by loving young men are now resting under suspicion of being perfect cascade girls and it behoves them to give that Willie boy a lesson in languages.

There has been a sneaking movement afoot for some time past, to give the Colonel a big benefit concert.
The Colonel is now old, and in poor health, and it seems more advisable to get together and honor a man while he is alive and can enjoy the compliment than to wait until he is dead and then rush to the footlights with flowers for his grave, a lot of empty honors and compliments which are utterly worthless so far as he is concerned. Post mortem honors remind me of the rich old squirrel who was always restraining the giddy impulses of his young nephew by saying, "Wait, son, don't be in such a hurry; when I die I'll leave you all my wealth and you can then enjoy yourself." The young squirrel waited—he couldn't wait do anything else, and after many years the old squirrel died and left him a big store of assorted nuts—the wealth so long desired was his, but alas, his teeth were gone and it did him no good.

Don't wait until a celebrity's teeth are gone—remember the squirrel.
Colonel Hays would have no trouble in securing the services of the artists of Louisville to sing or play at his concert and he has arranged to conduct at least one time during the entertainment and that is when "Molly Darling" is played. Before every section he will give a little account of the circumstances attending its production and Elder Powell has gladly agreed to preface the concert with a few introductory remarks about our home-grown composer. Let us go ahead, then, and say all the kind words while the people we say them about can hear them and all the good deeds while they can be appreciated, nor lay ourselves open to the rebuke given the Scotch committee which invited the mother of Robert Burns to attend the unveiling of the monument erected in his honor.

"No," retorted the gray-haired mother, "no when he asked ye for bread ye gied him a stone."

Hand the Colonel a bag of simole-ons; don't wait until later and go out to Cave Hill with a gaudy monument or floral pillows with "At Rest" traced on them.

The blue bird flew off in a pet.
Aye, lost she's flying.
To find the springtime lingering yet Within the cool man's lap.

She was not pretty as a doll
And yet she took his eye.
It was upon her parasol She caught it passing by.

'Tis sweet to love,
But how 'tis bitter.
To love a girl
And then not get her.

But bitter far,
You thankless sinner,
To love a girl
And then to win her.

DEATH COMES

To Miss Minnie Morris After An Operation.
Life Long Resident of Jeffersontown.
Well Known in Campbellsburg.

After an illness of several months, death reliev'd the sufferings last Saturday night of Miss Minnie Morse, following an operation for the removal of a tumor at a Louisville infirmary.
Miss Morse had been staying with her sister, Mrs. James G. Scott, at Warwick Villa for the past few weeks, and was taken to Louisville Friday in the hope that an operation would save her life. She survived by two sisters, Mrs. Scott and Mrs. D. J. Calvert, of Bedford, Ky., and by two brothers, R. H. Morse, of this place and Dr. P. M. Morse, of Bedford.
Miss Morse was born in this county, and since her mother's death several years ago, lived with her sisters. She also made her home for a time at Campbellsburg.

She was a member of the Jefferson-town Christian church, and was buried Sunday afternoon, the Rev. Wallace Nutter conducting the funeral services.

HARROD'S CREEK

Serious Illness of John F. Coons—Farmers Plowing Out Fields—Wedding of Miss Venable to Dr. Bramlett Announced.

W. S. KEMP, Correspondent.
Mrs. W. D. Clore and Mrs. J. Wilson Clore and daughter, of Buckner, attended church at Prospect yesterday.
The ball game between the Prospect team and the Falls City nine resulted in a victory for the former team by a score of 15 to 1, which was not quite so bad as 16 to 1.

John F. Coons is seriously ill at his home near Prospect. Mr. Coons enjoys the distinction of being the "oldest inhabitant" for miles around, he having passed his 96th year. He knew Henry Clay and other famous statesmen of his day, and can tell many interesting stories of the early days of Kentucky's history.

John D. Campbell, of Buckner, spent Sunday with Arthur Ingram and family at Prospect.

Some of our farmers are plowing up their outfields and planting corn instead. This is due to the depredations of the "green bug" and also to the backward season.

The orchard-crop will be a very small one, and as Oldham and Jefferson counties produce more orchard-fruit than any other counties in this part of the state, the scarcity of the fruit will be sensibly felt. Wheat and potatoes look well, but the corn has not made much growth.

Miss Ellen Converse, of Louisville, spent Sunday with Miss Alice Cann.
The Ohio river has been rising rapidly for several days, and some of the bottoms are already submerged. Not much damage is anticipated, however, except the drowning out of some of the corn.

Invitations are out for the wedding of Miss Mary Woodson Venable of this place and Dr. Eugene Bramlett of Nashville, Tenn., which will take place at the Presbyterian church on the evening of the 29th inst. at eight o'clock.

The beautiful weather of last Sunday brought many city people out to enjoy the beauty of the country. The cars were crowded all day and in the afternoon many came out in automobiles. We claim for this place what the editor of The Jeffersonian claims for town, that it is THE SUBURB of Louisville.

CURRENT EVENTS CLUB

Feeling the need of bringing the ladies of the neighborhood together socially, Mrs. H. N. Reubelt about one year ago conceived the idea of forming a literary club, which, while having all the elements of a social gathering, she planned, should also be instructive in a literary sense. In order to perfect her plan she asked a number of the ladies of the neighborhood to meet with her and her mother at their home January 11, 1906.

At this meeting a "Current Events Club" was formed, having for its purpose the mental improvement of its members in literature, art, science and history, at the expiration of which time the present officers were elected as follows: Mrs. R. H. Snively, President, Mrs. V. B. Howell, Vice President, Mrs. C. F. Bryan, Secretary.

The Club met semi-monthly until the latter part of June of last year when, after enjoying a very delightful picnic at the home of Mrs. L. C.
Owings, it disbanded for the summer.
Its first meeting in the fall was at the home of Mrs. William Bryan September 13. It has continued to meet semi-monthly, and its members have enjoyed some very interesting and instructive papers.

The Club has held rather strictly to current events, its members have studied a number of Shakespeare's plays, also poems from Longfellow and Browning.

On the fourth of July, next, the Club will have its annual picnic at the home of Mrs. William Hunsinger.
A most delightful day is anticipated.

THERE are many people in Kentucky who believe Judge Hager will do Gus Wilson, who spells his name with a double L, what Dewey did to Manila.

At Pittsburg recently a sick man, worried because doctors' fees were too high, committed suicide to avoid calling a physician. Most men, however, prefer to take the chance of calling in the doctor, and then let the latter commit suicide by starvation while waiting for his money. Anyway, it's always better to let the other fellow do the worrying.

AN Iowa school teacher, charged with assault and battery because he spanked some of his girl pupils for being naughty, was not only acquitted but was given an increase in salary by the school board. Teachers in Kentucky sometimes employ the smack, and subsequent proceedings in court are usually designated as breach of promise suits.

A SEVERE hailstorm was reported last week in Georgia, the big stones killing grown chickens and going entirely through watermelons in the fields. Heretofore reports of the devastation of chicken-roosts and melon patches in this section have been charged up to the colored brother, which leads to the suspicion that the alleged hail was both black and woolly.

Louisville, Ky., June 14, 1907.
Editor Jeffersonian:
We are just in receipt of a copy of The Jeffersonian, for which please accept our thanks. As we were for a number of years residents of Jeffersontown and still have many friends there we are much interested in the old town and are glad to see a newspaper among her many improvements and most heartily offer our congratulations and wish both you and "Brumertown" all the success in the world. Enclosed find our check for one year's subscription.
Yours very truly,
C. K. SPROWL & SON.

Fred Hoke, secretary and treasurer of the American Box Ball Co., Indianapolis, Ind., and a former Jeffersontown boy, writes to The Jeffersonian as follows: "I have received a copy of The Jeffersonian and am gratified to see this enterprise started. As the field is good and the management able I see no reason why it should not be a success. I would like very much to extend to you my right hand, and with it my congratulations, but being a hundred miles away from you at this time I am doing the next best thing in sending my check for a year's subscription. Although I have been away from Jeffersontown about eighteen years I still consider it my home in a way and want to hear about the people there as often as possible. I wish you unlimited success."

SUMMER HOTEL

For Jeffersontown—Mrs. Marie N. Windsor, of Fisherville, Purchases the Ragland Property and Will Erect Hotel.

PURCHASE PRICE $5,000.

Mr. W. H. Ragland disposed of his two-story frame dwelling and eight acres of land at Livingston Heights to Mrs. Marie N. Windsor, of Fisherville, Tuesday for $5,000. The sale was made by Geo. L. Martin, of Arthur E. Mueller & Co.

Possession will be given the first of October, at which time Mrs. Windsor proposes to spend several hundred dollars in remodeling the residence and building a first-class summer hotel. She has been running the hotel at Fisherville for some time and thoroughly understands the business, and, no doubt, will meet with much success in Jeffersontown, the leading suburb of Louisville.

The Ragland property is a beautiful place, with plenty of shade, situated on both the Southern and Bear Grass railways, and will be a delightful place for city people seeking a place of retreat for the summer.

Mrs. Windsor expects to open up the new hotel by the beginning of next season.

FINE WATER.

Well at Jeffersontown Affords Supply of Excellent Water Possessing Valuable Curative Powers.

Professor Otto Oppelt, an expert chemist of New Albany, employed by the Jefferson County Oil and Gas Co. to make an analysis of the water from the company's well at Jeffersontown, has made the following report:

Analysis of Water from Well of Jefferson County Oil and Gas Co.:

From the above analysis it will be seen that this water possesses remarkable medicinal properties, and its use would be beneficial in many cases of illness.

FISCAL COURT

Meets and Rejects Claim of County Surveyor For Extra Compensation—Approves Purchase of Rock Crusher.

The Fiscal Court met in Louisville Tuesday, and transacted considerable business. The claim of County Surveyor R. H. Young for road work plans prepared by him, amounting to $3,441.07, was rejected, because of a recent decision of the Court of Appeals holding that the court had no authority to pay County Surveyors more than their fixed salaries.

The claim was only temporarily rejected, however, the magistrates from the county desiring an opportunity to examine the different claims.

A committee from the Louisville Commercial Club appeared before the court and requested the use of the Armory for the International Sunday-school Convention to be held in Louisville next June. An attendance of 7,000 delegates is expected. Action upon the request was referred to the Armory committee.

Over Squire Hoffman's protest the court approved the purchase of a rock-crusher by Magistrates Dorsey, Robb and Withers, for use of county roads.

BACK TO FRANKLIN THEORY.

Modern Scientists May Be Forced to Rehabilitate It.

More than a hundred years have elapsed since Benjamin Franklin, employing a phraseology now superseded, put forth a theory of matter, says a writer in Current Literature. It was pronounced "a delusion" by the physicists of the nineteenth century, but the scientists of the twentieth century, according to Sir Oliver Lodge, may be forced to rehabilitate it as the only means of issue from the labyrinth in which all physical study is now involved. Stripped of technical verbiage and put briefly, the Franklin theory is that electricity and matter in combination form a neutral substance, which is the atom of matter as we know it. The most interesting part of the problem for ourselves, says Sir Oliver, is the explanation of matter in terms of electricity, the view that electricity, as Franklin seems to have supposed, the "fundamental substance." What we men of today have been accustomed to regard as an indivisible atom of matter is thus built up out of electricity. All atoms are composed of all sorts of "substances"—are built up of the same thing. In our day, to put it more clearly, the theoretical and proximate achievement of what philosophers from Franklin's day to ours have always sought—a unification of matter—is offering itself to physical inquiry.

SERVANT PROBLEM IN CUBA.

Cook is in Sole Charge of the Domestic Cuisine.

The Cuban matron has little to say in the management of her own household, as the family literally board with their cook, who has sole control of the cuisine. When a cook is engaged she is paid so much per month—$10, $15 or $20, as the case may be—for her work. She at once inquires how much is allowed for the marketing, which she is to do each morning. On being told, she figures out how much she can save from the amount, and if the grant amount to say 15 or 20 cents per day, she is likely to accept the position. She rarely sleeps at the house, and usually has a family of her own who are fed from the larder of her employer. Early breakfast is light—fruit, rolls and coffee. In the noon there is a meal known as late breakfast, which resembles the American luncheon. When this is finished the cook spends a few hours at her home and returns at five o'clock in time to prepare dinner. A half-grown girl is employed to wait, to take, answer the door, etc. In some families male cooks are employed. If the meals do not suit the master of the house he seldom has money for the marketing allowance—Mrs. C. R. Miller, in Leslie's Weekly.

Hard to Answer.

One day Robert Herrick, the novelist, was impressing upon his class in English literature, in the University of Chicago, the importance of reading what had been written with a purpose and had character and power. He contrasted forcefully such literature with the light, vivid, frivolous sort that seemed to appeal to the general percentage of readers. He then asked each student to tell him frankly which kind he was reading. After nearly all had confessed to something light, he came to a tall westerner, who showed a tendency to evade the question. "It can't be possible, I hope," said Herrick, "that you are not reading anything?" "No, it is not that," replied the westerner. "The fact is, I am reading your latest novel, and I can't decide to which class it belongs."—Lippincott's Magazine.

His High Estimation of Steam.

Carlyle once started the English-speaking people into recognition of the value of their great dramatist by suddenly asking the British public which it would rather lose, Shakespeare or India? I thought of that the other day, musing the editor of the Rader, when I was reading an article on steam navigation. What would the world rather lose, steam or tea? What? Why, almost everything; our literature, our art, our religions. Nothing we have is so valuable as steam. It is the greatest civilization the world has ever possessed.

Tom Reed's Birthplace.

The birthplace of the late Speaker Reed, which is about to be torn down, is in the heart of Portland's Italian quarter and is now a tenement, swarming with sons and daughters of superior Italian. How much they are impressed with the greatness of their surroundings was shown when a visitor, desiring to get a look at the celebrated statesman's birthplace, asked a boy if he would show him the "Tom Reed house." "Tomma Reed? Tomma Reed? You mean Tomma Reed, da milkman?"

Assimilation.

"You country has wonderful powers of assimilation, truly." "Wonderful! Nothing like it. Take the rawest foreigners that come here and I warrant you they will have indigestion of a good start toward it in the second generation, and in the third will be living as far beyond their means as many of the major born. Yes, sir, whatever the material, we work it up."

At the Dinner Table.

"Who is that handsome man over there?" "That is Louis XIV." "How absurd! What do you mean?" "Well, his name is Louis, and he is always invited when there is a party to be at table."—Translated for Tales from Pilegated Blatter.

PRISONERS IN A CAVE.

Party of Picnickers Has Exciting Adventure in Basuto Land.

A remarkable incident occurred in Basuto Land recently, writes the London Mail's Durban correspondent. A picnic party decided to make a trip into the Basuto country, which they entered by a pass known as the Laib' Ingubo, on the Natal frontier, and encamped for the night in a cave in the Drakensberg. Proceeding on their journey the following day they asked a native to direct them to a cave in which they could take their midday meal. The Basuto appears to have given information of their presence, for toward evening the party was intercepted by a number of natives, the old man who appeared to be in charge carrying a gun. The Europeans were then arrested, accused of being "white men's spies," and taken to a place which had the appearance of a mountain stronghold beneath an overhanging rock. Here the visitors' horses were turned astray, and the headman, telling them that they would not be allowed to re-enter Natal, signified that they would have to continue without their horses, and would have to carry their saddles. After a night spent under surveillance in a cave the Basutos maintaining a close watch upon their captives, the party made their escape by means of a stratagem, in which they were assisted by the Basuto guide, who helped them to capture the horses and led them back to the pass by which they entered. After a furious ride in the darkness, the precarious nature of the country leading to several exciting adventures, the party reached the Natal side early on the morning after their escape, thoroughly spent and unnerved.

TOOK THE MINISTER'S WATCH.

Last Action of Pickpocket Typical of His Life.

Rev. Dr. Chadwick, Bishop of Derry and Raphoe, in a speech at the synod of the Irish Protestant church, referred to the story of a pickpocket having been found with the watch of the clergyman who had come to attend him in his hand. The clergyman in whose experience this strange incident occurred was the late Rev. W. H. White, chaplain of the Savoy and chaplain to the speaker of the British house of commons in the reign of Speaker Brand. Mr. White was aroused in the small hours of the morning from his sleep by a sick call when, early in the next minute, he was a curate in a Brighton parish. He was summoned to a bad quarter of the town and was led to the bedside of a man who was rapidly sinking amid surroundings of destitution and squalor. The man passed away while Mr. White was offering prayer in his behalf, and Mr. White, on rising from his knees, discovered to his astonishment that his watch had been removed from his pocket and was held tightly in the grasp of the dead man.

Holst by His Own Petard.

Overhears lawyers often furnish their adversaries with weapons. "Did not see that," said the man who was mentioned by the roadside? an advocate inquired. "Yes, sir; I saw it very plainly." "It was conspicuous, then?" The witness seemed puzzled by the new word. He repeated his former assertion. "What is the difference," sneered the lawyer, "between plain and conspicuous?" But he was held by his own petard. The witness innocently answered: "I can see you plainly, sir, among the other lawyers, but you are not a bit conspicuous."—Tit-Bits.

Italy's New Cereal.

Italy has produced a new cereal of break-making purposes that is attracting a good deal of popular attention. A public test was made the other day at Menzobio of baking bread from four of the new grain, which is named Otero Curo, and has been developed by a priest of the name of Canzio. The bread was pronounced to be palatable, light, and mixed with one-third of wheat flour, is declared to make a sustaining food at very low price. Besides this, the "inventor" says that its general use would do away with the pellagra in Italy.—London Globe.

Life of French Mechanic.

All mechanics in France are obliged to serve an apprenticeship of from two to three years, during half of which period, at least, they receive no wages and must board themselves. In addition to this, each one must give up two years of his life for military service, for which he receives 1 cent a day and board and clothes. It will be seen that every mechanic in France must expend four or five years of his life without wages, before he is prepared to earn from 97 cents to $1.17 a day.

Something Ominous.

"That," said Senator Hale, referring to a political report, "is ominous. It is like the ominous speech of the servant maid. She had been employed only two days. In fact, her master and mistress had been only two days married. And going to the locksmith, she said: 'Will you please come to our house at once, sir?' When Mr. Neward started out this morning he slammed the door so hard he broke the lock."

Disappointed.

Inquisitive? If, as you say, you knew this man to be a rake, why did you invite him to your house? Hen-peck—Heaven, man! I never dreamed he would sleep with his daughter; I thought he would carry off my wife.—Translated for Tales from Le Rire.

ATTENDS REUNION.

John A. Thomas Recalls War-Time Memories After Visiting Battlefields of Civil War. Not A Disgrace To Be A Rebel.

Mr. Editor:

Do you want to know something of the impression of an old Confederate in visiting the battlefields of his boyhood? I have not the power of language to tell you of the sadness, joy and melancholy pleasure in reviewing the fields of those bloody days of forty years ago, but I will try to tell you of something of the relics and footprints on the historic fields at Richmond of the "Seven Bloody Days."

We first went to the reunion of our old comrades—which will be the last great reunion which we shall ever hold this side of our Last Camping Ground. The next one will be held over the Great River while we are "floating under the trees."

We had a royal time, shaking hands and hearing the great speeches of our great men. Among others we had a fine speech from the grandson of "Old Robert E." in which he told the boys, "They had not fought for what they knew to be right, for what the Constitution and all of the traditions of our fathers taught to be right," and many other similar statements, and in fact, in his speech he was in error in his conclusion. His great speech showed that the Lee family can produce orators as well as soldiers. We closed the meeting with a grand parade, which was the best and longest we ever had. We then went to the battlefields around Richmond—Mechanicsville, Fair Oak and Seven Pines on the headwaters of the Chickahominy. In noting the level topography of the three fields one wonders why the slaughter was so greater. It was here that McClellan received the first shot from Johnston and which converted his boastful march "On to Richmond" into a hasty flight to Harrison Landing. But it was also here that Johnston fell and General Lee stepped in and commenced a series of matchless maneuvers, brilliant victories, awful battles and tireless marches to the end of a career which will stand in the history of the world without a parallel until the last page is written.

Then we went on to Gaines' Mill, Frazier's Farm, Cold Harbor and Malvern Hill—the last of the "Bloody Seven," where two weeks later their parting farewell at the banquet of death on the Chickahominy. We then crossed the James river and went down to Petersburg around which Lee had drawn his last battle lines, extending about twenty miles, and behind which was the scene of the last struggle of the murdered South. It was in these trenches and over these undulating fields and up and down these very valleys there was seen more suffering, fighting and desperate courage than the Anglo Saxon ever saw elsewhere in all the centuries since the days of the great Alfred. It was our good fortune to have with us two men who were blown up in the "Crater." One was buried for six hours and the other fell in a pile of debris but was enabled to get up and run to the rear, where he recovered his equiptise and came back with the attacking column which carried the "Crater" and restored Lee's broken lines. He pointed out to us the details of the approach to attack. They came along the old plank road to a long ditch, to a ravine which runs just in the rear of the "Crater," then up a little sloping hill to within about one hundred yards of the ditch; they crawled till they could see the enemy's heads, who at that moment, seeing them, gave them a sweeping volley, but too high and then they made a rush and reached the edge of the chasm into which they poured a full volley and dashed down into the ditch with fixed bayonets and in about twenty minutes the cold steel and clattered rifles completed the awful tragedy. Five thousand boys in blue and black were handed over to the enemy for burial and the bottom of this chasm was flowing with blood.

We turned away sorrowfully from these dreadful fields trying again to solve the problem of why God permitted such tremendous energy and matchless valor to be wasted in a tragic and hopeless failure. It was from these lines Lee began his march to Appomattox, where he for the first time in all history hung over the tomb of failure and defeat a chapter more radiant and fadeless than the garlands of victory of all other fields of glory.

We went to the home and tomb of Washington and had the privilege of standing on the very spot where La Fayette stood eighty years ago and looked in on the greatest rebel in Anglo Saxon history. And while standing there I wondered why any loathsome treacher would seek to clothe the word "rebel" with odium, since it was worn by such a man as is sleeping there. We walked over the very paths he trod and rested under the trees that sheltered him and drank from out of his well, rested on his porch, walked through his rooms, saw his bed, his kitchen and all else of his belongings, and it seemed to me that the very breeze that floated over Mt. Vernon whispered that sweet word "rebel" and it was intensified as it floated up the river to Arlington, where they have wiped away every vestige and footprint of the great Lee. Nothing there remains to remind one that this is or was the home of the greatest of all Americans, but the walls, the old well and the Colonial pillars in front look out over the Potomac which he and Washington once loved so well.

I will close by saying that the day will come when all chivalrous and generous men will blush at three things, the confiscation of Arlington, the hanging of Mrs. Surratt and the torture of President Davis at Fortress Monroe.

Yours truly,
JOHN A. THOMAS.

KOSMOSDALE

Robert Horner Passes Away as the Result of an Operation Last Week—Other News Notes of Interest.

OMA LEWIS, Correspondent.

Mr. Robert Horner, Vice President of the Kosmosdale Cement Works, died at Norton Infirmary on the 19th inst. Mr. Horner was to have been married to Miss Elizabeth Burnett, of Louisville, on the 12th. A few days before the time appointed, he went to the infirmary of a carbuncle from which he had been suffering for some time. Dr. A. M. Cartledge made the examination and found that the poison had entered his system to a fatal extent, and while everything known to medical skill was tried in the effort to save Mr. Horner's life, it was evident Sunday that he would not survive the day. Miss Burnett and her mother were with him, and in accordance with his wishes, the Rev. Dr. Minnegerode performed the beautiful ceremony of the Episcopal church that made them one. Mr. Horner's father was with him but his mother and sister did not reach the city until two hours before his death. They had left Philadelphia expecting to attend the wedding when overtaken by the news of his illness and approaching death. The Kosmosdale Cement Works were closed Wednesday and all social affairs were suspended indefinitely.

Rev. C. S. Leonard, of Springfield, Mass., is expected here this week to join Mrs. Leonard who is spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Miller, of Louisville, was formerly the pastor of the Briar Creek Baptist church and will be pleasantly remembered by many old acquaintances.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Miller and daughters, Misses Helen and Ethel, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Miller. They will move out to their summer home sometime during the coming week.

Mr. and Mrs. Helm Bohannon, of Louisville, and Miss Antonette Hays, of Waverly Hill, were guests of Mrs. Florence Bohannon for the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. William Ramsey, of Louisville, and Misses Edith and Muriel Ramsey have rented the Methodist parsonage for the summer months.

Miss Ivy Lyon has returned from a visit with friends in Louisville and New Albany.

The Kosmosdale and Briar Creek Sunday-schools gave a picnic Saturday on Spring creek. The early hour of assembly gave them a long and delightful day which was enlivened by the usual good dinner and music and games by the younger set. The young men of the party organized a hunting expedition over the hills only to find that hunting was over for the season.

Mrs. and George L. Pope, of Louisville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Simcoe. Mrs. Pope also visited the family of T. L. Lewis.

We regret to say that J. R. Posey is very ill. His daughters, Mrs. George Hafer Harris, of Chicago, and Mrs. J. Goslee Hughes, of the Highlands are with him and other members of the family are in close attendance.

A Brutal Assault.

Albert Hughes, on Sunday last, came from the city in an intoxicated condition and when he alighted from the interurban car at Oakdale Park he attacked an old and much respected colored woman, "Aunt" Florence Bontm, as she is commonly called, and knocked her into a nearby ditch. She was carried to her home by friends. "Aunt" Florence has been afflicted with heart trouble for some time, and the blow that she received in her side was so severe that, since the occurrence, she has had frequent and serious attacks with her heart and her life is despaired at this writing. Her son swore out a warrant for Hughes and it is now in possession of Patrolman Peter Fischer to be served on him at the earliest opportunity.

Lightning destroyed a new barn belonging to George Gallagher last Thursday. Two new wagons and the material for a new dwelling were stored in the barn, all of which was lost.

The citizens of our community are benefiting by the daily run of a delivery wagon which carries their milk to the Jeffersontown Creamery, where they receive good prices for their cream.

Growers report good prices for the strawberry crop which is one of the staple money crops of this vicinity.

Quite a number of the neighbors gathered at the home of Miss Maggie Johnson Monday evening of last week to watch the blossoming of a wonderful cactus plant. The peculiarities of the plant are its manner of blooming and shedding of the flower. It blooms at night only; and immediately after the flower has slowly but perceptibly unfolded, it falls from the stem and withers. The blossom is quite eighteen inches in diameter and has three distinct rows of petals: the outer row being large and emerald, the next row like small ostrich plumes, and the inner row a mass of snow-white fringe; while the center is jet black. It is said there are very few of this species of cactus in the world.

Immediately after the ceremony they departed for Asheville, N. C., where they will spend two weeks. They will be at home in Auburn, Ala., after July 1, where Mr. Edwards is pastor of the Baptist church. Mrs. Edwards has many friends in Jefferson and Oldham counties.

So Fatiguing.
"So young Ritchley Kadd isn't to marry Goldie Stiles after all?"

"No, he got scared."
"Well, well! And I heard they had gone so far as to rehearse the wedding."

"Yes, that was the trouble. They had rehearsed five times, and Ritchley said the preparations for matrimony were such hard work that he was afraid that he couldn't stand the real thing at all."—Cathole Standard and Times.

To Remove Finger Marks.

The lintels of the doors of a room and the woodwork around the windows when enameled white or in pale colors frequently become marked with the impression of finger tips. A piece of flannel dipped in kerosene will effectually remove all traces, but after rubbing the woodwork the surface should be washed with a clean cloth dipped in very hot water, this being the only method of removing the smell of the oil.
